

First Light

Amongst the radiant twilight splendour,
Night shadows dwindle and die,
The summer too distant to remember.

Aurora fades ephemeral in violet and lime,
Rising sun: the end of wintertime.

Cadaverous ice lit golden as ember,
Temperate sundogs shine,
In an evening of September.

Cracking the clear dawn sky,
Another sleepy winter goodbye.