Sea Ice Research in Norway

celebrate, the APECS Discipline of the Month is featuring Sea Ice.

Check out our new webpage at <http://www.apecs.is/research-fields/cryosphere/sea-ice/> It's loaded with information on what APECS members are doing, who our mentors are, and how to find out more about sea ice. And the best part - it's interactive! If you're an APECS member in anything related to sea ice, climate change, etc....

September is here and that means fall is coming to Tromsø and people are back from vacation and back to work... just in time for the big Arctic Sea Ice minimum for the year. Norway has a lot of researchers working on various aspects of sea ice, from determining how molecular structure affects the mechanical properties of ice to looking at the life that is dependent on the ice. There are a number of great institutes here in Norway and I encourage you check them out and learn more about Sea Ice research in Norway.
