Norway has a long history of glaciology research, probably because it has 1593 glaciers, including Jostedalbreen - the largest glacier on the European continent. If you are traveling to Norway, you should be sure to check out the Norsk BreMuseum (Norwegian Glacier Museum) and Ulltveit-Moe Climate Centre where you can walk out onto this amazing piece of ice. Be sure to check out the number of institutes in Norway that deal with Glaciology... may are looking to hire researchers like you! These can be found at the World Data Centre for Glaciology's website.
